Thinking Out Loud

The conclusion of the European hostilities will undoubtedly see the greatest mass migration of people from Europe ever seen in all history. This is inevitable regardless of the outcome of the present titanic struggle. The reasons for this mass migration of the European peoples are painfully obvious—the lack of political and economic security to people who have grown sick of perpetual warfare, or, in general terms, one war per generation.

In the main the vast hordes of immigrants from Europe to Latin America will be welcome in those regions but all Latin peoples will insist that they leave their European politics in Europe. The newcomer will have to adjust himself to local conditions and he will find in any country of South or Central America the same prevailing sentiment, towit: "Our wine may be sour but it is our wine," and the newcomer to the country must adapt himself to conditions and not hope to influence the political progress or affairs of the country. I firmly believe that every country of Latin America will absorb their European Immigrants without prejudice to their time honored institutions or customs.

Pan American solidarity will be the strongest political factor on earth at that time and will be the prime meaning of the mass immigration to Latin America. The line of cleavage between the New World and the Old World will be as clearly visible as the Grand Canyon in broad daylight. The Pan American Airways system which is the sparkplug of our export trade with Latin America must be left free to continue its expansion and cooperation with the various countries of the Americas. The International Pacific Highway must be completed in the interest of the Pacific Coast and a system must be evolved whereby the American dollar becomes the trade dollar throughout the New World.

Every country of Latin America will, in the future, see to it that European immigration does not interfere with the political interests of their long established customs. Spain and Portugal will never be a dominant influence in the cultural nor business affairs of any Latin American country because they have nothing to offer of a modern nature. Such countries as Chile, Mexico, and Argentina will take the lead in producing qualified engineers for the development of their natural resources. This has been evident for quite some period of time.

In plain words the countries comprising Latin America will emerge from this decade with a stronger sense of nationalism than they have ever had heretofore and it is a case of European immigrants adopting themselves to the conditions which they find in Latin America and not a matter of forcing European ideas and customs on Latin America. Every republic of South America was colonized long before the United States was and the new comer must adapt himself to their customs either economic or political. The recent attempts of the German Nazis to interfere with local governments everywhere has taught the Latin Americans how to deal with such interference and reminded them of the fact that their inheritance consists of vast natural resources which must be safe guarded at all times.

The United States will emerge from this warring decade more thoroughly equipped for mass production than any other country in the world and if the ship-building program now in progress is continued on a common sense basis this country will possess the greatest power of distribution and common sense is all that is needed to produce a lasting prosperity for all the Americas. Trade, to be profitable, must be a two way matter of distribution and reciprocal trade agreements are absolutely necessary especially with the tropical countries of Latin America whose products are very dissimilar to ours.

The development of trade between the United States and Latin America will produce a prosperity for all concerned largely because it will mean an interchange of necessities between both. —R. C. Hurlbut.

Mary Jefford Will Left Most Of $10,000 Estate To Son

L. R. Jefford, former coroner of Nevada County and now a Grass Valley businessman, is bequeathed most of the state of the late Mary A. Jefford, his mother, in the will filed in the superior court here for probate.

L. R. Jefford is the petitioner. James Snell is the attorney. The petition sets forth the estate is less than $10,000 in value.

The will was dated December 3, 1940. It appoints Jefford as executor to serve without bonds.

After requesting that the sum for her interment shall not exceed $500 Mrs. Jefford made the following bequests:

"I give, devise and bequeath one of my diamond earrings to my granddaughter, Sue L. Jefford.

"I give, devise and bequeath one of my diamond earrings to my granddaughter, Marion Juanita Dingle.

"I give, devise and bequeath to my daughter in law, Wilma S. Jefford, my five diamond, twenty fifth anniversary wedding ring.

"I give, devise and bequeath to my daughter, Lucille Engle, my solitaire diamond ring.

"I give, devise and bequeath to my daughter, Irene Foote, my three diamond cluster ring.

"I give, devise and bequeath to my daughter, Marian Jones, my five diamond cluster ring.

"I give, devise and bequeath all the rest and residue of my property of every kind and nature and whithersoever situate to my son, L. R. Jefford."

LAST RITES HELD FOR DR. STUART

Final respects were paid Saturday afternoon at the Holmes Funeral Home here for Dr. Upton H. Stuart, 77, Nevada City veterinarian, who died at his Sacramento Street home Friday after an extended illness.

Dr. Stuart had been in declining health since the death of his wife last February.

The deceased was born of pioneer parents in Penn Valley and lived his entire life in Nevada County. He was known to practically all the residents of the county through his activities as a veterinarian.

Dr. Stuart's closest surviving relative was W. G. Robson, former Nevada City chief of police.

GRASS VALLEY YOUTH KILLED

Arnold Forsman, 20, reportedly of Grass Valley was killed when the automobile he was driving yesterday turned over in Yuba County near the Parks Bar Bridge.

Clifford Helbach, a passenger in the car, also of Grass Valley, was injured and taken to Marysville for medical treatment.

The accident was investigated by Ypba County highway patrolmen. The body of Forsman was taken to a Marysville undertaking parlor.

Down From Big Bend—

Ranger John R. Hodgson of Big Bend was in Nevada City Saturday on business.

BERNICE McQUAY BECOMES BRIDE OF FRANKLIN CLARKE

Miss Bernice Lewella McQuay, popular local young woman, became the bride of Richard Franklin Clarke at an impressive ceremony performed in the Methodist Church here Saturday night by Rev. David Ralston.

The ceremony, and the reception following in the social hall, was attended by nearly one hundred friends and relatives.

The bride was attended at the ceremony by her cousin, Doreen Foreman Smith as matron of honor and Cecil McQuay, brother of the bride, acted as the best man. The bride was given in marriage by her father, J. C. McQuay. The ushers were Thomas Rickard and Phil Angove.

Before the reception ended, the bride and bridegroom broke away from the reception to depart on their honeymoon trip. A surprise awaited them when they reached their car, however. Friends had jacked it up, tied tin cans to it and had written "Just Married" on conspicious parts of the machine.

The former Miss McQuay was active in the Epworth League and the Methodist Church here. She attended the Nevada City High School, as did Carke, son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Clarke, former residents. The parents of Clarke now reside in the Hawaiian Islands.

The couple intend to make their home in Alameda, where Clarke is employed.

Fire Threatens Historic North San Juan

HEROIC EFFORTS OF CITIZENS, PROMPT ARRIVAL OF FIRE EQIUPMENT FROM NEVADA CITY AND CAMPTONVILLE AVERTS LOSS OF ENTIRE MINING CAMP

Fire, starting in the basement of the residence of Mr. and Mrs. John Bartsch in North San Juan this morning about 10 o'clock, rapidly assumed holocaust proportions and threatened to wipe out that historic mining camp on the San Juan Ridge, because af lack of fire fighting equipment and an acute shortage of water.

Flames from the Bartsch residence leapt the highway and set ablaze the old hotel building owned by Mrs. Steve Solaro, one of the landmarks of the camp.

Before the arrival of outside equipment, bucket lines were formed by the town's men, women and children, as well as residents of the surrounding district summoned by the ringing of the school bell.

Fire trucks from the Nevada City office of the Tahoe National Forest, the State Division of Forestry at Nevada City, the Nevada City Fire Department and the Camptonville headquarters of Tahoe National Forest were despatched to the scene immediately upon receipt of the alarm. The flames were brought under control after the loss of the two buildings, and slight damage to the Woods Grocery, which effectively blocked the progress of the flames with thick brick walls, iron shutters and iron roof.

Prompt arrival of the fire fighting equipment and the heroic efforts of citizens were credited with averting total destruction of the camp. A prevailing north wind also checked spread of the flames by flying embers.

Fire Dispatcher Elwood Stone, enroute from Nevada City to Downieville, arrived in North San Juan at the outbreak of the fire, and just in time to rescue Mrs Bartsch, who attempted to dash into her burning home to rescue her two children, aged 4 and 2, who in terror had locked themselves into a bedroom. The children were rescued uninjured.

Disaster Chairman Stone of the Nevada City Red Cross Chapter and Carroll Coughlin, chairman have already notified the national headquarters of the Red Cross of the emergency and plans are under way to relieve the distress of afflicted families.

Mrs. Solaro had resided in the Sollaro Hotel building for the past 60 years and was stripped of all her belongings.

Incendiary Fire Burns Tip Top Restaurant

State Fire Warden W. F. Sharp is continuing his investigation into a fire which early Saturday morning destroyed the Tip Top Restaurant below Town Talk.

Sharp is of the opinion the fire was of incendiary origin. The fire, he said, apparently started in the rear of the building from the outside. Loss was placed at $3,000.

The building was owned by John Wrest. Miss Annie McDonald operated the restarant, which was closed temporarily two weeks ago because of a slack in business.

The Nevada City Fire Department sent a truck to the fire scene. Fire Warden Sharp dispatched one of the state's trucks to the blaze.

SON BORN TO CLAY LEWIS

An announcement has been received by friends here of Mr. and Mrs. Clay Lewis, former residents, of the birth of a son at the St. Patrick's Hospita in Missoula, Mont.

Mrs. Lewis is the former Miss Lois Held, niece of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Johnson of Nevada City and Alleghany. She resided here at one time and attended the local high school.

Local Families Entertain On Thanksgiving Day

Thanksgiving was the occasion for many festive gatherings in Nevada City.

Mr. and Mrs Chas. Meyers entertained family members at a dinner at their home.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Sikes of Broad Street had sixteen relatives and friends as guests on Thanksgiving Day.

Mr. and Mrs. Ed Martine served a pheasant dinner to their guests, who included Miss Frances Pryor, teacher in Walnut Grove, Murray Pryor of Woodland, Roger and Ben Pryor of Maxwell. All are sister and brothers of Mrs. Martine.

Besides family members from this city and elsewhere, Mrs. Oscar Odegaard had Mr. and Mrs. Howard Burr as guests on Thanksgiving Day. A pheasant dinner was served.

St. Agnes Guild Guest Tea

Thursday, December 2nd, St. Agnes Guild will give a guest tea at the home of Mrs. E. M. Rector on Nevada Street. A social time, tea and program will be enjoyed. All guild members are anticipating a very happy afternoon, each member will bring a guest. Mrs. Arthur B. Innis is chairman of tea and program arrangements and will be assisted by Mrs. C. E. Walker, Mrs. Floyd Hiscox, Mrs. R. B. Champie and Mrs. E. M. Rector.

District Deputy To Visit Oustomah Lodge Tomorrow

Oustomah Lodge of Nevada City will entertain District Deputy Grand Master George Pielenz of Grass Valley tomorrow night at the lodge hall here.

Noble Grand Earl Woodruff, and Jonothan Pascoe, recording secretary, have urged a large attendance for the annual visit of the district deputy.

Tomorrow night's meeting will be the last night for the nomination of officers for the coming term. Refreshments will be served.

Eleanor Browning Becomes Bride Of Thomas Mackey

Thomas Mackey, employed at the Purity Grocery here, and Miss Eleanor Browning, daughter of the Fred Brownings, former Nevada City residents, were married last week in Reno. The couple figured in a double wedding. Miss Marjorie White and James Stanaway, both of Grass Valley, were united in marriage at the same time.

The Mackeys and the Brownings are residing in Grass Valley.

HEETHER LEAVES $15,000 ESTATE

Alfred J. Heether, Camptonville lumberman and former Nevada City truckman, who was killed in an accident at his sawmill recently, left an estate valued at approximately $15,000. The entire estate is willed to his wife, Ethel M. Heether. Mrs. Heether last week filed a petition for administration of the state in the superior court here.

The estate consists of cash in the bank, tractors, trucks, fully equipped sawmill, real estate in Nevada City and Camptonville, and timber already cut.

Lynn Kelly is the attorney for the petitioner.

WATCH YOUR STEP SPEEDERS

Over on Highway 40 traffic officers have been given orders to arrest any and all persons who drive on or across the white line on the highway. In other words, keep strictly on your own side of the center line, especially on curves.

The officers cite the fact that more than twenty five people have been killed or injured in the last few weeks between Auburn and Truckee, practically all due to speeding, and they are determined to use effective means of curbing careless drivers.

It stands to reason that the many sharp curves cannot be negotiated at high and unsafe speeds without cutting over the center line.

Fines for the offense are averaging $15 and it is said that the money is literally rolling into the coffers of the local justice courts at Truckee, Dutch Flat, Colfax and Auburn.

JUST WONDERIN'

I wonder if Autumn and Spring are conspiring
To dazzle old Winter and hold him at bay,
With bright hues of crimson and gold intermingled
And green grasses growing neath cool skies of grey.

I wonder if King Winter isn't somewhat annoyed to find fresh young grass growing upon the terrain which he would like to cover with a cold, white mantle of snow. However, that is the experience which faces him year after year in this miracle land by the western sea. Perhaps he is used to it — he should be by this time.

It may be that Winter is not in the least disturbed. It may be that each year as his seasonal reign begins, he scans the great central valleys, the magic shores and forested uplands, raises a quizzical eyebrow and turns eagerly to his tasks of fashioning ermine robes for the higher ranges of the Sierra, planting snow banners at advantageous points and crowning each lofty pinnacle with ice born gems, which, when Winter nights are clear, will reflect from every facet, the bright shining of the stars.

So it is that November, with no qualms of conscience, often conspires to stage a preview of spring, calling to the little seeds to wake up and weave a green covering for the hills and vales, bidding the streams to sing as they journey toward the sea and misting the thankful landscape with cool, refreshing rain. A miracle of interlocking seasons which creates the unexampled charm of California our homeland of the west.

I wonder if Senator Downey's native alibi, "I was unaviodably detained," is destined to become a classic. Stray tid bits of speech are prone to obtain sudden and amazing popularity. A few years since, some one invented "innocous desuetude," and now you couldn't pry those two words apart with a crow bar. The curious phrase, "at long last," fell from the lips of an adbicating monarch, and what a run it has since enjoyed. Now, "I was unavoidably detained." is not a new arrangement of words, but it is a most useful one for face saving purposes. For instance. if you have been elected to a position of trust and responsibility—if you have taken time out in order to ascertain the desires of seventy five per cent of your constituants, and you are absent from your post at a time when those desires are being either realized or thwarted, all you have to do is to smile and say, "I was unavoidably detained."

I'm sure Herr Schicklegruber could use this face saving device with telling effect. Having promised to make a speech in Moscow upon a certain day and having been unable to keep the tryst, he could just fly back to the homeland, duck into a bomb proof shelter and shout to his gullible people, "I had my Mscow speech all ready to deliver, but I was unavoidably detained."

Uncle Silas says: "I don't think modern children are any smarter than the youngsters who lived in the days before radios, movies and jitter bugs. The modern children just seem to be smarter. —A. Merriam Conner.

Christmas Tree Cutters Pay Triple Stumpage Rates

Two trespassers, who claimed innocence because they did not know government land line boundaries, have been required to pay triple stumpage rates fr Christmas trees cut without a permit during the current Christmas tree gathering period.

Walter Mandeville, Tahoe City, paid $132 for 110 trees cut north of Tahoe City last month, tfter having the choice of paying this or having the trees confiscated and face the judge for cutting trees without a permit.

On November 18, Louis Euer of Truckee paid $95 for a small load of large size trees cut in the Euer Valley vicinity where he supposed he was cutting on his own land.

Euer was found hauling the trees Friday by Ranger Snider and E. M. Stone and a check on the area where the trees were cut revealed he cut most of the trees on Tahoe National Forest land and he thought he was cutting on his own land.

"Cutters must assume the responsibility of finding land boundaries of private land in which they may cut trees," Snider said.

MAKE THE OLD BUS LAST LONGER

SACRAMENTO, Nov. 24.—(UP)—Is a new automobile out of your reach this year? Fewer cars will be manufactured next year so you may have to make the old bus last longer.

The state department of Motor Vehicles offers these tips to get more service out of your old car at less cost:

Avoid racing the engine in starting.

Drive at moderate speeds; fast driving burns up oil and tires faster and gives less efficient use of gasoline.

Avoid jumping away from traffic lights and synchronize speed with signals where there are a number in succession.

Keep air pressure in tires equalized by checking weekly.

Avoid sudden starts and stops.

Slow down on curves and corners.

Transfer front tires to diagonally opposite rear wheels and vice versa every few thousand miles.

Keep car in good running condition by proper adjustment of carburetor and frequent tuneups of the electrica units.

Scores Attend Girl Scouts Court of Awards Here

The Elementary School Auditorium was filled with admiring friends and relatives last week for the occasion of the Third Semi-Aannual Girl Scout Court of Awards. The program got under way when Ruth Mitchell, bugler for the evening, sounded "Assembly," after which Mary Jane Hawkins, officer of the day, ordered the several troops and their color bearers into the hall.

After the assembly had saluted the flag, the color bearers returned to their seats and the officer of the day turned the program over to Mrs. M. Morrison, Girl Scout Commissioner, who presided for the remainder of the evening. Mrs. Morrison then presented the guest sueaker, Judge Jones.

In the course of his remarks, Judge Jones emphasized the present very great need for what scouting stands for. He felt that the Girl Scout movement should have the same support that the Boy Scouts receive, and that the men of the community should learn more about the movement here ,and give it their cooperation and backing.

Mrs. Morrison then presented the long awaited class and proficiency badges. The following received the awards: Tenderfoot: Troop 1, Dolores Rockefeller; Troop 2, Jenny Lamson, Joanne Hefelfinger, Joyce Lake, Joyce Moore, Vera Malkavich, Helen Dodge, Norma Scholfield; Troop 3, Julia Panellia, Bonnie Miller, Swimmer: Troop 1, Barbara Neal, Mynola Marsh; Troop 2, Genevieve Ellis; Troop 3, Mary Jane Hawkins, Bonnie Miller, Maggie Barry. Cook: Troop 1, Mynola Marsh, Ruth Belisle; Troop 3, Mary Jane Hawkins, Mary Fleming, Fay Williams.

Life saver: Troop 1, Mynola Marsh; Troop 3, Fay Williams. Child care: Troop 3, Iva Foreman. Interior decoration and home nursing: Troop 1, Ruth Mitchell. Foods and Hostess: Troop 1, Mynola Marsh.

The colors were then retired, and while preparations were being made for a tableau "The Girl of Today and the Woman of Tomorrow," Ruby Blaich gave two greatly appreciated accordian solos. The following appeared in the tableau. Reader, Iva Foreman; Characters, Mynola Marsh, Mary Fleming, Nancy Williams, Dolores Rockefeller, Mildred Dodge, Finette Champie, Barbara Neal, Betty Jacobs, Barbara McLoughlin, Beverly Scholfield, Shirley Berk, June Chan, Fay Williams, Ruth Belisle, Juanita Williams.

The program was concluded with the assembly singing "God Bless America", piano accompaniment by Mrs. White, and the playing of "Taps."

BUYING A BIKE?

Those parents planning to purchase a bicycle for their children are cautioned by the Public Safety Department of the National Automobile Club, to protect the child's safety by getting a bike that can be easily handled. The practice of buying one that is too big on the theory that the child will grow into it, isn't sound. A bike that is difficult to ride is a hazard in traffic.

FAMOUS PIANIST IN SACRAMENTO DECEMBER 8

Northern Californians will hear one of the world's greatest pianists December 8 when the Sacramento Music Series presents Vladimir Horowitz, as the second event on its program for the year. Horowitz' concert, one of the most widely anticipated events of the season, and a result of several seasons effort to secure him for Sacramento, was originally planned for next spring, but on the request of the artist himself it is being changed to December 8 in Memorial Auditarium.

The famous pianist, son in law of Arturo Toscannini, has returned to the United States after four and a half years' absence. He first mode his debut in New York's historic Carnegie Hall, an event which followed tremendous success in Europe. Wherever he plays, the houses are sold out. Professional pianists buy tickets to hear their amazing colleague, whose earning power is greater than that of any artist save Rachmaninoff and Paderewski.

The 36 year old pianist's concert in Sacramento December 8 is one of a sold out itinerary which will bring him to the coast around the holidays. Tickets for this event are on sale now at the Ware- Hazelton box office in Weinstock-Lubin's. The concert will be in Memorial Auditorium.

This Woman Is Mine Opens Tomorrow At Nevada Theatre

The secret of bringing memorable characters to the screen, according to Producer-director Frank Lloyd, is no secret at all.

Lloyd, whose latest Universal adventure romance "This Woman is Mine" which plays tomorrow at the Nevada Theatre, has created his share of great characters, and he does it by following one simple rule of life.

"It is a well known fact that everyone is a composite of good and bad qualities," says Lloyd. "Not one of us is wholly good or wholly bad. A screen character is made great by showing the turmoil created inside him by his conflicting qualities."

As a case in point, Lloyd cites the character of a stern p,roud ship captain, portrayed by the veteran Walter Brennan, in "This Woman is Mine". The captain's greatest quality is diccipline, and he demands it at all costs.

"The captain," explains Lloyd, "is placed in the midst of a tense situation created by a ship that is filled with men of violent emotions. These emotions are brought to the surface by the unexpected presence of a beautiful girl stowaway, played by Carol Bruce.

COURT CALENDAR

The following orders were made in the superior court Friday by Judge George L. Jones:

STOP FOR YELLOW

Red is not the only color in the traffic light that mean the motorist should stop—the yellow light means stop, also, declares the Public Safety Department of the National Automobile Club. Many motorists apparently feel that the fellow light means "Go—if you think you can make it." The main difficulty is that a motorist coming from the intersecting street may have the same thought—and they meet in the middle.

To be scafe, motorists should remember that the only color that means "Go—all is clear" is green.

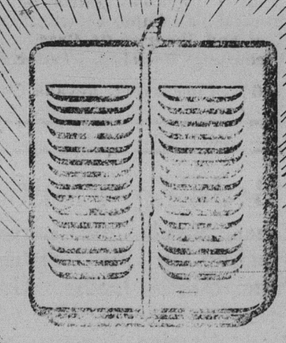
Quit shivering!

PLUG IN AN ELECTRIC HEATER



Of course you can take exercises to get warm. But that means time and energy. Thousands and thousands of Californians quit shivering the easy way. They plug in an electric heater. Quick as "scat" the heat is on. The heater above has a fan that puts out a flood of heat in a hurry. The more you use it the more you like it.
